

Honor Paid To McGill Visitor By Debaters

Lord Willingdon Is Second Honorary Member of Society

JUBILEE DEBATE MOTION DEFEATED

Hon. Dr. J. H. King Leads Affirmative, Opposed By C. H. Cahan, K.C., M.P.—Dr. Stephen Leacock Takes Chair And Calls Speaker To Order—Two Students Speak—Scarlet Key In Charge Of Reception

HIS Excellency Right Honorable Viscount Willingdon, Governor-General of Canada and Visitor of McGill University, received at the jubilee meeting of the McGill Debating Union Society last night the second honorary membership conferred by the society in the 50 years of its existence.

This ceremony preceded a full-dress debate on the subject, "That in the opinion of this house Canadian universities should have representation in the House of Commons," proposed by Hon. Dr. J. H. King, Minister of Pensions and Health, and opposed by C. H. Cahan, K.C., M.P. for St. Lawrence-St. George.

Over 300 people stronged the Union Ballroom to honor McGill's Visitor and to listen to the debate on the motion which was lost and in which Victor B. Mitchell, K.C., Hon. A. R. McMaster, K.C., Dr. Jean Bruchesi of the University of Montreal, and the Reverend Chauncey Adams were the other guest speakers. The Scarlet Key Society was in charge of the reception.

Visitor Expresses Appreciation After Philip F. Foran, President of the Debating Union, had formally made the presentation, the Visitor replied, expressing his appreciation of the honor. He stated that McGill

Student-In-Industry Group To Meet Soon

Will Gather on March 31st to Prepare For Summer Work

Enlarged for the purpose of giving an instructed send-off to those students who will be employed in industrial concerns during the coming summer, Professor J. A. Coote's study group will gather in Strathcona Hall for a final supper meeting on Monday, March 31st.

About ten or a dozen men have been in this group on the problem of industry during the session, but their approach has been somewhat theoretical. Yet it is felt by some that they are now in an advantageous position to enter a plant with a wide-awake and critical attitude toward what they observe there. The meeting has been called with the idea of giving further guidance to those men and to any others in the university who may be interested, as well as to coordinate their observations by making tentative plans for re-assembling next fall.

Letters will be sent out to some men urging them to join the meeting with as many of their friends as they can induce to come. Science men in particular are valuable to the scheme, and if any receive no formal invitation, they may obtain further information from C. M. Stewart in Strathcona Hall.

Historical Club Meets Last Time in April

The final meeting of the Historical Club for the session 1929-30 will be held on Tuesday evening, April 1st, at 8.15 p.m. at the residence of Professor E. R. Adair, 245 Sherbrooke St. West. Alastair Watt will deliver a paper on "Queen Victoria and Lord Melbourne" and F. L. Pollard will follow with one on "Prince Albert and Baron Stockmar". After the papers the election of next year's executive will be held. All members are requested to attend this final meeting.

Allan Edson Is Elected Head Of Arts Undergrad

E. Allan M. Edson, Arts '31, is president of the Arts Undergraduate Society for next year as the result of elections held Thursday. R. Wilson Beckett, also of third year, is treasurer, and Kenneth G. Baker, second year, is vice-president.

Dean Cornell was elected to the position of secretary previously by acclamation. Less than 47 per cent of the Arts student body polled their votes.

Edson's vote was 57. Hutchins was second with 62. Parquharson obtained 40, McNaughton 35 and Dixon 32.

Baker obtained the largest majority with 116 votes, with Hamilton behind this, and Currie last with 18. For the treasurership, Beckett obtained 133 votes. Webster lost by 21 votes.

The sophomore class polled the largest number of votes, with less than 55 per cent. The Juniors came next with about 48 per cent, the freshmen with 41 per cent, and the seniors, with 36 per cent.

Confederation Is Talk Of Banquet

Newfoundland Club Holds Its Annual Dinner

ELECT EXECUTIVE

Speakers Express Loyalty and Devotion to Dominion of Newfoundland

Opinions as to whether Newfoundland should or should not confederate with Canada were actively debated by various members of the Newfoundland Club of McGill who dined last night at the Queens in their annual event and elected the board of executives for the coming season of 1930-31.

Toasts to the King, Newfoundland, Sister Societies, the graduating class, were proposed and answered by those members who are in their last year at the University.

The toast to Newfoundland was proposed by J. G. Howlett who expressed his congratulatory opinions of Newfoundlanders whom he has met in the course of his travels. He spoke on the possibility of his country becoming a province of Canada, because of its large debt. Since Newfoundland is actually a successful Dominion, Mr. Howlett said that there was no reason for confederation. Following this toast the club sang the Newfoundland Ode.

Depreciates Confederation Mr. S. G. Garland made response to the toast with the words that "Newfoundland should not be swallowed by Canada" and that he was thankful that the land of his birth refused to become standardized, and that it has kept its own culture and civilization.

The toast to Alma Mater was proposed by J. G. Howlett.

X-Rays Was Topic Of Dr. W. H. Barnes

Spots on Photographs Show Internal Structure of Atoms

"At the present rate of scientific research it is almost impossible to keep abreast of recent developments," said Dr. W. H. Barnes, speaking to the Physical Society yesterday on "Recent advances in X-ray crystallography". He stated that over 500 papers have been delivered on this subject during the past year.

It was first shown in 1912 that the internal structure of atoms could be determined by X-rays. Since then work in that field has been carried on by the Braggs, and the data accumulated has proved of great importance.

By the location of dark spots on photographic plates the planes of atoms can be found and hence the internal structure. Benzene was the first substance to be completely elucidated from X-ray analysis alone without reference to other methods, hypotheses or sources.

Slides were shown illustrating the structure of silicates compared with other compounds and from this work a great number of generalizations have come. Examinations of potassium chlorate and sodium chlorate show that the ClO₃ groups have identical dimensions in each case.

Dr. Barnes recommended the article in "Nature" on Dr. Williams' lectures on cellulose.

Good Biography Distinguished By Lack Of Bunkum

Interest in Lives of Great Men Growing, Says Professor Algy Noad

IDEAL IS TRUTH

Collard, Bourne, and Lewis Become Officers of English Literature Society

Biography falls into two classes—the bunkum type and the unbunkum type, stated Professor Algy Noad of the Department of English when speaking before the English Literature Society yesterday afternoon. The topic of his lecture was "Recent Tendencies in Biography."

Tádmund Collard was elected as president of the Society for the coming year, Munro Bourne as men's vice-president, Mary Hill as women's vice-president and David Lewis secretary-treasurer.

In the last twenty years there has been a revived interest in biography, remarked Professor Noad. The later works of biography show a decided departure from the conventional. According to the speaker truth is the ideal which should be strived for by the true biographer sometimes this is hard to attain due to the absence of records during some part of the life of the person of whom he is writing.

Should Suppress Personality

The best biography writers are those who have been successful in suppressing their own personality in their works. An excellent example of this type of biography is Boswell's Life of Johnson. During the period before the present era biographies were not very popular. They were written usually by a friend or relative of the deceased who dwelt in great detail on the fine achievements and passed over the lapses from grace of the person of whom he was writing about. This is not to be altogether counted against the biographer as the readers of that period wanted that type and the critics made no mention of this fault.

Today biography falls into two (Continued on page four)

Margaret H'Doubler Lectures On Dance

Director of Dancing at University of Wisconsin

"The Dance in Education" is the title of an illustrated lecture, which will be given by Margaret H'Doubler, M.A., on Monday, April 7th, at 8 o'clock p.m., in the Convocation Hall, Royal Victoria College under the auspices of the Department of Extramural Relations. Miss H'Doubler is Professor of Physical Education and Director of Dancing at the University of Wisconsin and an exponent of the theory of the dance as an interpretation of music.

She has created a new school of dancing which has had an important influence in America, as it exemplifies her dominating idea which is to bring out any talent her pupils have. Her work will be demonstrated by a class of women students of McGill and teachers of Physical Education.

The admission to this lecture is 75c. Tickets may be secured at Royal Victoria College, Y.W.C.A. and at the door.

DINNER TICKETS ARE GOING FAST

Professors Will Speak at Commerce '32 Event

Next Tuesday evening at 6:30 the commerce sophomores will celebrate the close of a successful year by a class dinner. The tickets for the festivity have been selling fast and the executive feels that the class has responded nobly to their first get-together since the inception of the class in the fall of 1928. Preparations are being made for a 100% turnout.

Among the many short speeches to be given is a toast to examinations by Brodhead. The benefits of his own personal experiences will be divulged for the first time. The members of the faculty who will be present are: Professor Sugars, Dr. Villard, assistant professor Culliton, and assistant professor Patten. A short but comprehensive resume will be given of the years activities of the class.

Medical Men To Choose Officers Next Wednesday

TEN men in the Faculty of Medicine have been nominated for seven positions as officers of the McGill Medical Undergraduate Society. Four of these, W. H. Weldman, C. C. Clay, H. P. Macey, and R. B. Dunn, have been elected by acclamation.

The election will be held on Wednesday, March 26. The poll will be open in the Medical Building from nine a.m. until five p.m. The nominations for the various offices are as follows:

President: Campbell M. Gardner, Med. IV. Donald G. Henderson, Med. IV. Vice-President: A. M. Harris, Med. IV. D. A. Sampson, Med. IV. Case-Reporter: W. H. Weldman, Med. IV. (acclamation) Med. III. Treasurer: C. C. Clay, (acclamation). Assistant Treasurer: H. P. Macey, Med. III (acclamation). Secretary: R. B. Dunn, Med. II (acclamation). Assistant Secretary: John Nichols, Med. I. Dagget Norwood, Med. I.

Bill Barclay Is Editor-In-Chief

M. Aronovitch and Munro Bourne on New Board

HONOR HALF OF STAFF

Daily Banquet Attendance is a Record—Eight New Associate Editors Named

Bill Barclay, who has sponsored Monday's Daily throughout this session, has been appointed editor-in-chief for next year by the retiring managing board. This announcement was foremost among those made at the staff banquet in the Union grill room on Thursday evening.

Mike Aronovitch and Munro Bourne will work with Barclay on the managing board as managing editor and news editor respectively. Doug Ogilvie will become sports editor, to fill the fourth senior position on the staff.

Associate Editors Named

Appointments to the associate board and the presentation of awards were also made at the largest Daily banquet of all time, about 100 reporters and guests being present. Moe Aspler, Bob Bowman, Nathan Levitsky, A. S. Marshall, John McNaughton, Kaye Milbourne, Robert Picard and Louis Quinn are the new members of the editorial staff. All these reporters received bronze pins, as did L. S. Baile, Ben Fernyhough, Gerry Hunter, Jerry O'Shaughnessy, and John Rowat.

Professor John T. Culliton, former

DENTAL SOCIETY ELECT OFFICERS

Oliver and Vosberg Chosen by Acclamation

At the final meeting of the Dental Undergraduate Society on Thursday, in the Medical Building, Joe Persk, retiring president, stated that the Annual Thrift Dance was a decided success both socially and financially, and incidentally suggested that next year's dance be discussed earlier than it had been this year.

Another suggestion was given by T. R. Murray; that of electing a publicity man to look after notices and accounts of the society's movements in the "Daily".

Election of next year's officers resulted in the choice of the following executive: Hon. President—Dr. G. Henry; Hon. Vice-President—Dr. G. Franklin; President—A. W. Oliver (by acclamation); Vice-president—C. Vosberg (by acclamation); Sec. Treasurer—A. Lapin.

Nominations Open For R.V.C. Society

Nominations are called for the following officers of the R.V.C. Undergraduate Society: President (fourth year), Vice-President (third year), and Secretary-treasurer (second year). Nominations must be in writing and signed by ten undergraduates and must be in the hands of Margaret Dodds not later than Friday, March 25.

Goodman Leads Economics Club In Coming Year

Rountree, Baker, and Webb Other Officers—Treat Labor Government

CRITICIZES POLICY

Caplan Reproaches Party For Neglecting Policies Upon Attaining Office

Sam Goodman was chosen as president, Meredith Rountree as vice-president, Ken Baker as secretary, and Dwight Webb as treasurer, when at the last meeting of the year, held on Thursday night, the members of the Political Economy Club elected their executive for 1930-31.

The subject of the evening, "The Policy of the British Labor Government" was discussed in two papers given by Lovell C. Carroll and Benjamin Caplan.

Caplan took up the domestic policy of the present government, describing the conditions under which it came into power and the difficulties it has had to face. He outlined the pre-election promises and ambitions of the Labor Party with regard to domestic affairs and went on to show what achievements actually had been made.

Criticizes Thomas

Caplan emphasised the lack of result obtained by Hon. J. H. Thomas in his attempts to relieve the unemployment situation. He criticised the Laborites severely for advancing various socialistic cures for internal ills of the country, and then being afraid to apply their own suggestions when in power.

Lovell Carroll dealt with the foreign policy of the MacDonald cabinet. He first described the successes obtained by Snowden at the Hague, the advance made in friendship with the United States, and other minor

Arts Juniors Dine After Examinations

Proposed Dance Cancelled in Favor of Banquet, May 14th

On the evening of the last examination, May 14th, the members of Arts '31 will gather round the festive board in the Lasalle Hotel, Drummond Street, to listen to entertainment and speeches. John T. Culliton, Assistant Professor of Economics and Political Science, will be the guest of the occasion.

The proposed class dance to be held in the near future has been cancelled owing to the proximity of the examinations and the limited interest among the juniors, so the banquet will be the only other class event of the year.

Tickets selling at $1.00 may be obtained from any of the committee members, Ken McNamee, Bill Eakin, and Howard Webster, in the Arts Building or by phoning their homes.

CHRISTIAN UNION HOLDS ELECTIONS

Arranges Elaborate Programme For Coming Session

W. Lyall Dettlor will be president of the newly organized Evangelical Christian Union, F. E. Davis, secretary-treasurer, and L. W. Billingsley, adviser to the executive, as a result of the elections held at the meeting Thursday afternoon.

The office of vice-president was left open, as it is hoped that a number of women students will join the Union. This position will be filled later when that condition has arisen. This organization was inaugurated last fall, and although not regularly organized has carried on a regular scheme of work through the present session. It is planned along the lines of similar groups in Oxford, Cambridge, and other universities throughout the world.

Indoor Rifle Club Meets Today

At 2 p.m. this afternoon the McGill Indoor Rifle Club will hold their third and last D.C.R.A. match of the year. In conjunction with the above shoot there will also be held a meeting of the Outdoor Rifle Club. The business in hand is the election of officers and the presentation of the Birkett Cup and trophies.

English-Teaching Problems To Be Subject Of Talk

"SOME Problems in English Teaching" will be the subject discussed at the second meeting of the McGill Psychological Society on Wednesday, March 26, at 8.15. The speaker will be Professor F. Clark of the department of education. The approach to educational problems from the psychological angle has of late been much stressed, and there has been much interesting work done, from this point of view, which has led to results expected to be of great value.

In view of this current interest, Professor Clark's lecture will be very stimulating, and will provide matter for a lively discussion.

The final meeting of the Society will take place on April 15, when Professor Boris P. Bakkin, noted physiologist, will speak on "The Physiological Effects of Music." This should throw some instructive side-lights on the relations between aesthetics, psychology, endocrinology, and general physiological. This will also be a business meeting where officers will be elected for the coming year.

Webster Made Club President

Dr. Woodhead is Again Elected Honorary President

PRIZE IS GIVEN

Charlie Yuile, Janet Smart, Lorne Gales, and Dave Dunton Receive Offices

Dick Webster was elected President of the Player's at the General meeting of the Club, held in the Union Ball-Room Thursday evening. Miss Phoebe Nobbs received the prize offered by Colonel Dwyer for the best original Play, written by any member of the Club. Colonel Bovey very kindly presented the prize.

The retiring secretary, Cluny Dale, read the minutes of the last meeting; then Charlie Yuile read his report as the production manager for last year. He was followed by George Nicholls who read his report as the Chairman of the Workshop Plays Committee. Howard Webster, the Club's Business manager, read his report, and proclaimed a satisfactory balance sheet. George Howe, the retiring President, read his report, the last of the report, the last of the reports.

Thanks Judges

Hugh Trimmingham wondered whether or not he had a franchise and, if not, why not. He was finally convinced he had one. George Nicholls proposed a vote of thanks to Dr. Woodhead, Dr. Woodhead, Dr. Noad, and Mr. Matthews for their great help to the Club as the Committee of Judges in the one act Play Competition. He also proposed a vote of thanks to Mrs. Stehla and Mr. Cecil West for their invaluable assistance in producing the two major productions.

Dick Webster was then elected President for the next year; he took the chair. Charlie Yuile was elected vice-President, and Miss Janet Smart 2nd vice President. Lorne Gales was elected secretary, and Dave Dunton Treasurer. Maycock was elected Chairman of the one-act Plays committee.

D. Lewis Wins Annual Talbot Papineau Cup

Denies That Modern University Provides Incentive to Academic Achievement

11 CONTESTANTS

Standard so High That Judges Have Difficulty Arriving at Decision

The Talbot Mercer Papineau Speaking Contest, which is held annually and is open to the whole university, was this year won by David Lewis Arts '31, last Thursday, upholding the negative side of the resolution that "The modern university provides an incentive to academic achievement."

Cahler, last year's winner of the cup, opened the discussion for the affirmative. The judges had beforehand drawn one name from among the other contestants, the person so chosen to remain in the room and speak on the negative side, refuting the arguments of the first speaker to the best of his ability, the other contestants staying out of the room. Before the second speaker presented his arguments, another name was drawn by the judges, to remain in the room and speak on the affirmative side, refuting the arguments of the second speaker, and so on.

Few Wish to Study

Lewis, refuting to Levy who had spoken for the affirmative, said that it is only the man who will dedicate his whole life to the search for truth who will devote himself wholeheartedly to academic study.

A man is shrouded in the desire to apply his learning to practical life, and he comes to a university with the purpose of preparing himself for life. This is a good purpose in itself but it is not conducive to academic study. He no more has an intense interest in things for themselves.

The large mass of material available to the modern student tends to

Dr. L. Pariseau To Speak To Society

Medical Students Will Hold Meeting Monday Evening

Dr. Leo Pariseau, one of the leading authorities in Canada on the subject of electrotherapy, will be the guest of the McGill Medical Society on Monday evening, March 24, at eight o'clock.

Dr. Pariseau, who is a member of the staff of the University of Montreal and the Hotel Dieu, will deliver an address upon the subject of "Two Rather Sister Conferees: The Doctors Marat and Guillotin." The address will be illustrated by lantern slides.

This is the third time that the Medical Society has been favoured by a distinguished visitor outside the University, and the Executive that the attendance will be even better than that of the last meeting.

The annual meeting of the Medical Society will be held on Monday, March 31, at eight o'clock. The athletic manager and the honorary officers will be elected at that time. There will be an address by Dr. James Ross on "The Place of the Sanatorium in the Treatment of Tuberculosis."

SOCIETY TO HOLD ORATORY CONTEST

Elections Will Be Feature of Delta Sigma Meeting

The Annual Inter-class Public Speaking Contest of the Delta Sigma Society will be held next Thursday afternoon, March 27, in the R.V.C. common room. This will be the final meeting for this session of the Society.

Two students from each year will compete, and anyone interested in public speaking is asked to get in touch with the representative of her year. The representatives are: Fourth year: Elsie Woodley, Third Year, Alice Calder, Second Year, Thelma Mitchell, First Year, Marjorie Quirk. Suitable prizes will be presented.

Election of officers for the coming year will be held. A list of nominations has been posted in the Arts Building common room, and others are called for.

Waiting For The Dawn

TO CLIMB a mountain to see the dawn, even if it may be a difficult physical task, is certainly repaid when the actual event is transpiring. We doubt if any student at McGill has seen the dawn. Perhaps before they came here they were in a position to do so, perhaps after they graduate they may be able to do so, but actually here in McGill, unless there is a cataclysmal event, students will never be able to see it.

A few days ago the arms of Morpheus were unkind to us and a mind that was wandering set in action feet, wandering. The moon upon Mount Royal made a claim that was irresistible and we climbed to the Lookout, urged by the twitter of awakening birds, helped by the music of the little birds of water from the snowbanks, beckoned by the ghoulish shadows which the moon made between the trees.

It was an hour before sunrise and the light in the east was winning the battle with moonbeams. The city lights flickered and became low before the majesty of the oncoming force that was to call the world to action. With no atmospheric obstruction we were prepared to enjoy a rare treat, seeing the sunrise at McGill, for down on the mountain side she lay, as blissful as her founder.

The time of waiting did not seem long in spite of the great expectancy. The red glow in the east gave us all the more hope. It would have been better for us if we had not hoped for so much. With the moments of actual sunrise in progress we were denied the great inspiration that had come upon a similar occasion in Switzerland. As we were foiled so everyone in Montreal is foiled, so everyone in McGill is foiled.

No one who finds himself in the immediate vicinity of McGill will ever be able to see the sunrise, at least not unless that great event happens, of which we have hinted. That great event is the removal of the loan mountain that rears itself up in the path of the sun. The sun is rising but the mountain obstructs its beneficial effects upon McGill on the side of Mount Royal. Rosy fingered dawn comes and those rosy fingers are seen as shafts of light that emerge around the side of the obstructing mountain. New born light floods the surrounding country, but the lone mountain hinders the light falling on McGill.

True the sun soon rises above the mountain and touches the towers and castellated roofs of the University buildings, but it is not the light of the dawn. It is secondhand. It seems to lack the sincerity of new born brilliance. McGill becomes bathed in light after the rest of the world has enjoyed it for some time.

And such will be the case for the dawn of mental, moral and spiritual enlightenment at McGill always, unless that great cataclysmal event happens.

Education For Peace

SPEAKING in the House of Commons at the beginning of the month, Agnes Macphail introduced a motion which should be of interest to all students, whether they agree with the member for Southeast Grey or not. Her plan would place a chair of international relationships in every important Canadian university and set up international scholarships available to students of other countries for study in this country. For this last proposal Miss Macphail cites as precedent the Rhodes scholarships and those offered by the French government to Canadian students.

The mechanism for these innovations on behalf of peace would be provided by an appropriation equal to one one-hundredth of the present appropriation for war. Miss Macphail states that last year's military estimates were $20,000,000, so she supposes $200,000 available for her plan. She continues: "If we allowed $6,000 for the setting up of each chair, that would amount to $102,000. If we allowed $1,200 each for four scholarships, in each university, two for Canadians going abroad and two for students of other countries coming to Canada, that would amount to $81,000. These two amounts deducted from the original amount of $200,000 would leave the tidy sum of $118,000 which would be sufficient to establish a rather remarkable library on international affairs. That sum could "be divided up to pay for the beginning of libraries in each university where a chair was established."

Objection was raised to Miss Macphail's motion on the ground that in the provision for education, the federal government was infringing upon the sovereignty of the provinces; to which a supporter of the motion replied that the Rhodes Foundation had been infringing on provincial sovereignty for some years, if one is to assume that the offering of scholarships in Canadian universities is such an infringement. The motion was finally carried with the rider that it be referred to the committee on industrial and international relations.

Just how this measure would be greeted by the universities if put into effect is by no means obvious. We know of no Canadian university which has such ridiculous chairs as hotelkeeping, firefighting, and others which are unknown in some American colleges. The objection might be raised that the ground that the new professor would cover is already provided for in the history department, or the political economy department, or in the sociological department, or in all three. Without denying this, one would point out that there might very well be a real place for the new chair in correlating the phases of the work of the old departments which deal with internationalism. In any case we are not aware that universities are on the look-out for excuse for declining endowments. If intelligence were applied to the question, the money could probably be utilised in such a way as not to antagonise any existing interests in the university.

As the House of Commons has placed itself on record as being favorable to the principle of the resolution, it behoves all students who have any interest in international affairs to study the proposal and form an opinion on the matter.

Race Traditions

By Ernest Pitt

RACE TRADITIONS SHOULD NOT BE LOST By ERNEST PITT.

When I note, as we all must, how old customs, old traditions and old formulae are dying out in every walk of life, I am inclined to wonder if it is not a wise thing, wherever possible, to find some way of perpetuating at least the memory of the best of them. We see, for instance, in several universities in various parts of the empire, chairs of Gaelic established to prevent the original native tongue of our Irish, Welsh and Scotch citizens being lost. We see in our own neighbourhood, the old customs of snowshoe tramping, ice palaces and carnivals, fast trotting horses and the like fading out. The old fashioned "bee" which once characterized rural life is disappearing. Whoever would call a "bee" of his neighbourhood to help build a barn; and even real estate must bow before the demands of progress for we see the old custom of the big city residence with an army of servants becoming a thing of the past. The suburban community concert has received its final death blow from the radio and the barn dance will probably never be heard of again.

We who are made up, nationally of several distinct races, are the greatest sufferers from this tendency, because we have so many interesting national customs to lose. The melting pot idea of our neighbours to the south of a standardized citizen with no traditions dating back beyond his landing in this country is not altogether suitable to the British system of nation building.

Our fellow citizens of French language and origin show a very fine example in this respect. They cling to many customs which have been handed down to them from the hardy explorers and settlers in his country from whom they have sprung. Their St. Jean Baptiste festival once a year is one of the best instances of this. It is not a French celebration, nor yet an all-Dominion festival. And yet it is both, for it is the festival of that offshoot of the French race to whom we owe the colonization and exploration of North America in the major degree. On that day especially, our French fellow citizens seek to recall all that is finest in the history of Canada which their fathers made, and in the traditions and customs which belonged to their fathers and which they refuse to allow to die off.

All honour to them. I think theirs is an excellent example, and one worth copying.

Why should not a public holiday be declared on St. Patrick's Day, so that the best customs, traditions and memories of the Irish residents of Canada may be recalled to memory? Some encouragement should be given to local societies who are so sincere in their efforts to recall to the minds of the present generation of Irishmen, the sacrifices and customs of their forefathers. St. Patrick's Day parade is becoming more and more each year a living monument to the traditions of the early Irish and the efforts of our worthy citizens, who are behind this noble work, are to be commended. And why not a similar festival on St. George's, St. David's and St. Andrew's Days. Our Hebrew citizens already have several holidays which serve this purpose for them.

While the history of all these races offers many names to recall, their history in Canada itself would furnish an excellent picture to present before the people once a year. Our French Canadian citizens do well to remind us once a year, in a particular way, what Jacques Cartier, Melsion-neuve, Champlain, Brebeuf, Dollard des Ormeaux, etc., etc., have done for Canada as well as what other famous Frenchmen have done for the world.

At a first thought, the names of D'Arcy McGee and Shaughnessy spring to the mind, then Wolseley; and a woman's reflection would recall many other Irishmen whose contributions to Canadian history should not be forgotten. The Scots would point to Strathcona, Macdonald, MacKenzie and a long list of others without whom Canada would not be what she is to-day.

Likewise our English and Welsh societies could on their proper occasions bring before our notice equally notable names of heroes; Drake, Cook, Nelson, Wellington, Baldwin, Lloyd George, Haig and many others. Along with the recollection of famous names, could be combined the presentation anew of old customs which, in the haste of modern commercial and social activity are in danger of being forgotten.

Red & White Revue Lyrics

The College Stomp

By Lawrence H. Freiman

And when most anyone, decides they'd like some fun,
There's only one thing that gives you,
A satisfaction, without a care—but one reaction.
You have to start to dance, just give the boy a chance,
Your pleasure's not complete ever,
For it's essential, but one credential—it has to be new.

Chorus

When you start, just go like this,
Start to step, and never miss,
You'll find fun so perfectly new.
Move your feet just a little bit,
Then repeat, then stop a bit,
It's so sweet—now isn't that neat?
Hear that rhythm—syncopation,
It's got you now:
Blue stepping, what a setting,
Don't you think that it's a wow?
Don't you try to learn this step,
Ask me why, the answer's pep
What a romp—it's called the College Stomp.

Opening Chorus

By Lawrence H. Freiman

This year's inventions of our good intentions
We now present to you,
One step, a new step, and each step with new pep,
In our new Red and White Revue
Chorus
We're going up, one step at a time,
Each year one we climb, and we hope to find
You smiling Now, let us start to go,
Never one step slow. We will make you happy.
Now we've moved up to Moyse Hall, this show won't lack;
This is a big step forward, never one step back.
We're going to give such new quality,
Much less quantity, but—just wait and see.

Correspondence

The Editor,
McGill Daily.

Dear Sir,

In connection with the Red and White Revue tracas (to put it mildly), allow me to point out that if the roll of the McGill chapters of a certain fraternity and of a certain sorority be compared with the personnel of the Revue, there will be found a coincidence little short of remarkable. These organizations are indeed fortunate in possessing nearly all the theatrical talent in the university between them.

Very truly yours,
Salemman Sam.

Montreal, March 21, 1930.

The Editor,
McGill Daily.

Dear Sir,

May I, through your columns, express my thanks, and those of the McGill Debating Union Society, to all those who assisted in the organization of the celebration of the Golden Jubilee of the McGill Debating Union. In particular, I should like to mention the invaluable aid given by Colonel Bovey, by Mr. G. B. Glasco, and by Mr. P. M. Alexander, without whose constant and untiring attention the Society could not have had the success that was manifest last evening to all who attended the Jubilee Debate. Our thanks are also due to the Students' Council, to the Graduates' Society and to the McGill Daily for the assistance given by them to the Debating Union.

Yours Sincerely,
Philip F. Foran.

Dob—I didn't know what you smoked, Jeremy.
And perhaps you drink as well?
Jeremy—Oh, quite as well, if not much better.

EXPECTED

The heavy sugar daddy and a new chorus girl were enjoying a little dinner in a private room at a roadhouse.

As the meal neared its finish he cleared his throat and said:
"Er, er, how about a little demitasse now, dear?"

"I knew it! I knew it!" exploded the girl. "I know you weren't treating me this nice for nothing."

Some day we're going to get up enough nerve to tell a traffic cop we really are going to a fire—and how about going to blaze himself?

Just a few more informatory doubles, and we'll shoot the Works.

A woman driver is one who doesn't let her right hand know what her left hand has signalled.

Our idea of real news would be if a lion shot Martin Johnson.

According to a weekly paper the police always stop the traffic to let Mr. George Bernard Shaw cross the road. The idea of stopping Mr. Shaw to let the traffic pass is said to have been abandoned some years ago.

Proposed Glee Club Progressing Rapidly

Will be Under Auspices of Banjo-Mandolin Members

McGill is at last to have a Glee Club under the auspices of the well known campus organization, the Banjo Mandolin Club. It has been felt by the officers of this club that it should be expanded by the addition of several more musical instruments to form an orchestra to work in conjunction with a group of male Glee Club singers.

With this end in view the Banjo Mandolin executive approached Russell Hale, the Red and White Revue artist, to organize a Glee Club under the constitution of the Banjo Mandolin Club. Russell Hale has had a great deal of experience in the Glee Club line, having been a member of the Syracuse University Glee Club. On being interviewed by the Daily yesterday Hale said that all the principal universities and colleges in the U.S. already have strong glee clubs fulfilling a distinct and beneficial need on their campuses. These clubs at times go on tours during which they have attained immense popularity outside the University. Hale said that a McGill club of this nature could attain an equally important position.

At its initial meeting which was held last night tryouts were conducted by Hale assisted by Dick Sangton, and as a result many times were inscribed on the roll of the new club. Another meeting will take place next Thursday at 5 o'clock in the Union Ball Room at which the executive positions for the combined club will be determined and elections held to fill them. All interested are invited to attend.

Profs. and Students in Chess Matches Tuesday

The McGill Chess Club meets the professors in the semi-annual matches, to be held at the Faculty Club, 3600 University St., on Monday evening, March 24th.

In the last games, held in November, the students were victorious, having the longer end of the score of 4½ to 2½. The professors, however, promise to put a stronger team up this time.

The following will compose the students' team: Gold, Pimenoff, Billette, Rudkin, Levitsky, Saunders, Aronovitch, Rivett, Weiner, and Garmaise.

M.W.S.A. ELECTIONS

Nominations for president and secretary-treasurer must be signed by at least ten members and be presented before the executive meeting of March 22.

When You Ask for Your First Job—

Will you be able to say that you have had the necessary business training? Or will you have to admit a lack of practical knowledge and enter the "school of hard knocks"?

Every college man has two roads open to him: the trial and error method of attaining business leadership involving years perhaps of delay; or the business education method which provides in much less time that training the business world demands.

Which road do you choose?

Babson Institute offers you the direct route. In a thorough and intensive nine months' course, you can learn the principles of Finance, Management, Production, and Distribution. More than that, you can learn how to use this knowledge; so that when you apply for your first position you can say:

"Yes, I have had the necessary business training!"

Send for Booklet

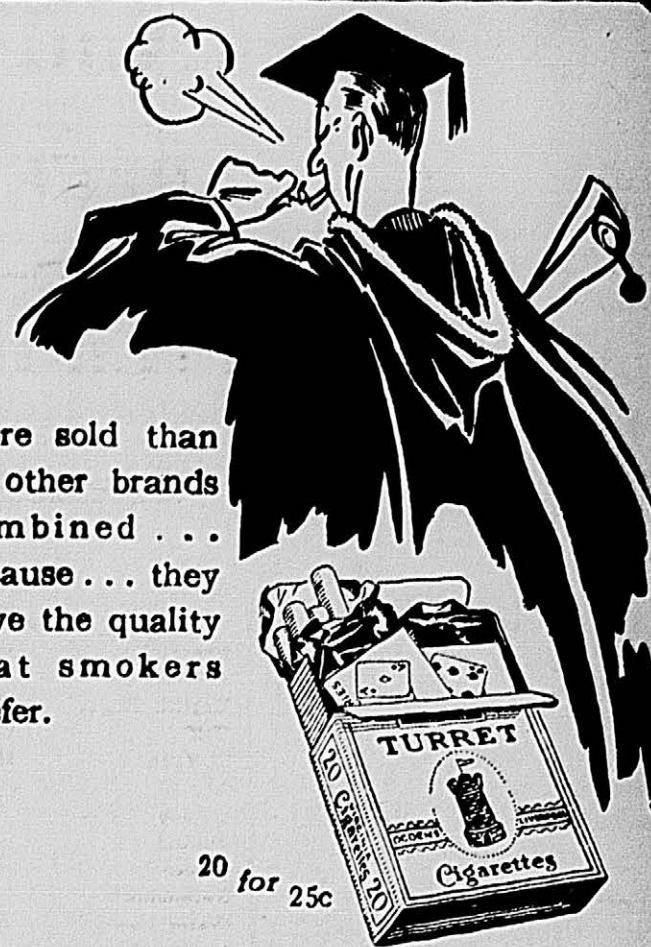

We invite you to send for our booklet "Training for Business Leadership." It tells how many other young men, like yourself, have been prepared for business at Babson Institute and how you, too, may be equipped to fill eventually a executive position. The booklet is free. When you have read the booklet, print on to your father and ask him what he thinks of this practical instruction in business fundamentals. New terms open March 29, June 28 and September 24.

293 Colors And Numerals Are Awarded To Red And White Athletes

45 MEN TO RECEIVE FIRST GRADE COLORS—FOUR EARN MAJOR LETTER IN TWO SPORTS

McTeer, Rice, St. Germain and Young Get Double Honors

SIX TEAMS GET TITLE SHIELDS

96 2nd Grade Colors, 93 3rd Grade Colors And 55 Numerals Awarded—Rugby Club Takes Majority Of Letters—Decided Increase In Number Of Awards Over Last Year

INCREASED activity and interest in athletics at McGill this year is reflected in the unusually large number of awards, the lists of which were released by the Athletic Office yesterday.

The forty-nine first grade colors include twelve for rugby, seven each for hockey and track, six each for basketball and boxing, wrestling and fencing five for English rugby, two each for tennis and skiing, and one each for swimming and gymnastics.

Four men received two first grade awards; George McTeer and Ralph St. Germain for rugby and hockey; Mel Rice for basketball and English rugby and Don Young for basketball and rugby.

Members of the six championship teams, B.W. and F., English Rugby, Gym, Hockey, Swimming and Tennis all receive, in addition to their first or second grade colors, the shields emblematic of the intercollegiate titles.

The 293 awards, as compared to 176 last year, are distributed as follows: First grade—49; Second grade—96; Third grade—93; Numerals—55. The number of numerals to be granted is still incomplete as the winners of the intercollegiate baseball league have yet to be decided.

According to a statement released by Major Forbes, Athletic Manager, when interviewed last night, the colors are now ready for distribution and may be obtained by those entitled to them upon calling at the Athletic Office on the second floor of the McGill Union.

First year men who have qualified for colors will only be granted numerals until they have successfully entered the second year when the colors will be automatically granted. The complete list is as follows:

Coroner's Court

Before we pass from the journalistic picture gentlemen we recommend to your tender mercies our successor, one Douglas R. Ogilvie, '31, this year's college Ziegfeld and next year's glorifier of Red and White ALL HAIL! Hevvo prowess on the athletic field.

We can but remind him of the cardinal principles of the Sports Department, namely and to wit:

Your first duty is to your newspaper and to your readers, (including the Faculties of Law and Science).

Remember always to present the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth.

Never to allow personal bias to interfere with an honest and straightforward presentation of the news.

To weigh and measure your news carefully so as to give the greatest prominence to stories that have an interest for the greatest number of students.

To place all your strength and vigor behind the presentation of your personal views, making certain first that those views are in the best interests of this University.

Never to cringe and always to stand foursquare behind Old McGill.

You verily, the end has come. With the issue of this edition the sports pages close its activities for the year. The members of this noble court have gathered in solemn convulso for the last time to sit upon such VALE! weighty matter as sport.

The year 1929-30 will go down in history as one of the most successful in the past decade—red and white athletes having garnered six championships out of a possible fourteen. Varsity also took six titles and Queen's two. The redmen were successful at Hockey, English Rugby, Tennis, B.W. & F., Gym, and Swimming. The hockey title returned to Old McGill after a lapse of seventeen long years, while the boxing, wrestling and fencing crowns made its appearance again after an absence of seven years. No doubt at the start of the season McGill athletes met defeat, but this may be counteracted by the glorious finish, when the redmen came through to take four titles within the short space of ten days.

Aside from intercollegiate activity, intramural sport around these parts also picked up considerably. The uplifting of intramural sport may be attributed to the careful and diligent labor of the various managers, notably Ronald Rowat, who handled the interclass football and hockey series in a most capable manner.

As we close the Coroner thanks the jurymen for their kind attention;—the retiring members of this court are as follows—

Coroner—J. R. Paterson.
Clerk—T. I. Levine.

Jurymen—R. K. Martin, S. N. Schacter, Russ Call, Doug Ogilvie, Miss M. Stockton, H. B. Hicks, J. Altner, S. Janikun, M. Aspler, R. Bowman, F. MacFarland, C. C. Clay, M. Bourne and W. Barclay.

Prehistoric Type Of Man Superior

Is Indication of Relics, Says Professor Clark

That prehistoric types indicate that better men than those inhabiting the earth today have perished utterly, leaving no trace but their bones, and that unless modern man takes upon himself the task of determining his future he may vanish just as completely, were statements made by T. H. Clark, Professor of Paleontology, speaking in the Mechanics Institute Thursday night on "Man's Life on Earth."

The speaker adduced evidence to show that man is not improving physically and that if he is to improve the human type it must be through morality.

In dealing with man's genealogical tree, Dr. Clark stated that the first definitely human fossil was assumed to be about 1,000,000 years old. The oldest fossil bearing a resemblance to man was found to have a brain capacity equal to that of modern man, and a skull like that of today. He ante-dated the 1,000,000 years of glacial time and with his remnants were found chipped flints which proved he had the ability to work stone with his hands, a trait forever peculiar to man.

had been the first university to greet him, when it conferred an LL.D. degree upon him shortly after his arrival in this country. He regretted that as Visitor he had not visited the university often, but remarked that Canada was a large country with which to become intimately acquainted. He hoped that upon some future visit to Canada his welcome from McGill would be as warm, and he invited any McGill graduate, undergraduate or professor to pay him a call when in England.

Dr. Stephen Leacock was then asked to take the chair, and Dr. King opened the debate. He based his argument on the fact that educated men are bound by party ties. He admitted that there are university graduates there now, but pointed out that they are bound by party ties. He then gave a short history of university representation in Great Britain and spoke of the reforms which university members have brought about. It was Dr. King's opinion that if this practice were adopted in Canada scientific men would be elected, who would be of great benefit to parliament, the university and the country.

Claims Origin was Political
That the origin of university representation in Great Britain was purely a political move on the part of James I, and was in no sense based upon idealism as might be supposed, was the contention of C. H. Cahan in opposing the motion. He contended that a university man had not the personality to carry a measure in the House, and that his influence was greater in other fields.

Mr. Mitchell upholding the motion, outlined Canada's form of government, and was called to order by the speaker for being off the subject. He quoted the opinions of Smuts, Disraeli, and Gladstone, stated that university men like Sir Currie should be in the Senate, and was in the midst of a eulogy of Dr. Leacock when time was called.

Says Motion is Undemocratic
Failing to see why any man should have two votes, he graduate of a university or not, Hon. Mr. McMaster denounced the motion as undemocratic. He showed that the university members in Great Britain had been constant opponents of reform, and had been representative of class legislation.

Speaking in French Dr. Bruchesi maintained an impartial attitude. He brought his greetings, good wishes, and congratulations, and stated that to be a complete man one should be both a university graduate and an ex-convict.

Two Students Speak
The first student speaker, E. G. Collard, Arts '21, opposed the motion claiming that a university graduate does not need two votes, and that universities should remain free from party politics. The Reverend Mr. Adams contended that the opposition were narrowing the subject unduly, as the motion did not intimate that the graduates would have votes. He did not see why an under graduate over 21 years of age, usually of higher mentality than the average citizen should not have a vote merely because he is away from his own constituency.

The motion was not comprehensive enough, claimed David Lewis, Arts '21, who was in favor of turning the government of the country entirely over to universities. Put as the motion stood the collegiate voice would be lost in the hale parliamentary chatter.

On division the motion was lost by an appreciable majority.

classes namely the bunkum type and the unbunkum type. The bunkum biography is a novel based on the facts concerning some well known personage which gives interest to the reader and is not unpleasing to read. Certain writers of this type admit that their works are novels but others would lead one to believe that they are authentic. The unbunkum biographers attempt to give facts. Their works are intended to revive the popular estimation of this type of literature.

The question that the critics ask today is whether or not the biography is true. If the writer can prove the fact that it is, his work is usually considered good.

posed by A. G. Gillingham who stressed the fact that the only type of students that mattered were those who seriously attempted to acquire the art of right living and cultivated ideals that motivated them through life.

Mr. Hewitt responded to this toast by saying that McGill contributes greatly to the education of Newfoundlanders.

The toast to the club's Sister Societies was made by L. A. D. Curtis who spoke of the intimacy and good feeling which was fostered by these societies and served the purpose of banding together those who were away from home. Lt.-Col. E. M. Renouf made answer by saying that students were in the public eye and that Newfoundlanders must hold up the glorious traditions of their school and their land by getting that spirit of internationalism that stamped men of vision and judgment.

Toast to Graduates
The last toast was to the success of the graduating class and was proposed by G. M. Brownrigg. In the name of the club, he wished them well in their various fields of endeavor. W. S. Bishop of the Arts faculty, H. R. Bursey of Theology, and T. J. Quintin of Medicine responded with hopes of doing honor to their country and to their school and of meeting again in the future.

The speaker, Prof. A. B. J. Moore gave a picturesque account of the climate and panoramic beauty of Newfoundland.

Silver Thread Tells Of Mythical Kingdom

English Department Sponsors Third Children's Play Yesterday

With colorful scenic and lighting effects and attractive costumes, "The Silver Thread," the third of a series of children's plays under the auspices of the Department of English, was presented yesterday afternoon before an appreciative audience in Moyay Hall. Leona Gray and Freda MacGachan were in charge.

The setting of the play is in a kingdom west of the moon and east of the sun, yet not too far from the rock-bound hills of Cornwall. It is in the spring of the year in one of those mythical ages which have long since passed.

Story of Young Miner
The play, which is one of three acts, is centred around a young miner who lives at home with his mother in a humble cottage. The goblins who are becoming bolder and bolder in their actions are very anxious to kidnap a young princess whom they admire very much.

It so happens that an old lady from beyond the hills gives a ring to this miner-boy whose name is Cubert. It is to lead him to safety should he ever be in danger. The goblins capture the princess and take her to their gorge-room. Cubert finds this out, breaks into their den, and by following a silver thread which leads from the ring he rescues the princess. The king her father rewards the mother of the boy for her son's bravery.

A regular performance of the play will be given this afternoon.

D. Lewis Wins Annual Talbot Papineau Cup

make him lazy; he has but to look up an encyclopaedia or a dictionary and he there finds everything worked out for him. What we now desire is not a depth of knowledge but a superficial grasp of everything. The contestants, in the order in which they spoke, are: E. G. Collard; A. M. Klein; K. G. Baker; A. Felner; N. L. Levy; D. Lewis; R. W. Beckett; K. Angel; A. Doig; E. E. Cockerton; C. Currie.

The judges were Dean Ira A. Mackay of the Faculty of Arts, and Major Kemp of the National City Company, Dean Mackay, speaking for the judges, said that it was very difficult for them to arrive at a decision as the standard of speaking was very high. They felt, however, that it should go to Lewis. The chairman, Philip Foran, then presented the winner with the Talbot Mercer Papineau Cup, which is given to the winner of the contest each year.

The Cup is donated by Mrs. L. G. Papineau in memory of her son, Talbot Mercer Papineau, a graduate in Arts and Law in McGill University and a Rhodes scholar, who was killed at Passchendaele in the Great War. At the close of the contest, Mrs. Papineau announced that in future she would present a portrait of her son to the winner of the Cup.

Rabbi Berger Spoke To Oriental Club

Election of New Officers Took Place Also

"That which science calls first cause, religion calls God," said Rabbi Berger to the Oriental Club on Thursday evening, at their final meeting of the year in Strathcona Hall. The speaker, lecturer in the Oriental Department, talking on the subject "Is God a Superstition?" explained that one of the chief reasons why people objected to the conception of God, which is general now, is that they thought they could reduce His qualities and attributes to a language which they can conceive.

"We cannot prove the existence of God either by our senses or by our reason," admitted the speaker, "but science cannot disprove His existence. Now, if the rationality of the world seems to imply a God, and if Faith in such a God brings meaning and purposes and hope into the world, then we are justified in clinging to the conception of God we have today."

In addition to the speech, the elections of the clubs took place. For the position of presidency, G. Hall was elected, while J. Cohen will fill the office of vice-president. N. A. Levitsky is the new secretary, and Archer was elected treasurer.

achievements in Palestine, India, Iraq, and at Geneva.

Want International Co-operation
The remainder of the paper contained a full statement of the comprehensive ideal lying behind the foreign policy of the Socialists. The speaker explained how the labor ideas are different from the old "liberal" policy. Labor wants international co-operation; it wants regulation of the relations between states by some world-wide agency. The socialists look with favor on the "United States of Europe" and would have the whole world divided into similar groups, all working in co-operation for the common good of humanity. The British navy squad will be an international sea police. The French will maintain order with their army and air-force.

editor-in-chief of the Saskatchewan Herald, proposed the toast to McGill Daily, to which George Brown, former managing editor of the Daily responded. Both speakers got their quota of laughter and applause. Other speakers heard in the toasts were J. Alex Edmison, editor of Old McGill 1930, Beatrice Fernyhough, Colin MacLeod, and Scotty Bedding. Some of the associate editors also attempted to speak.

The retiring managing board members were given gold rings, and Ted

Levine, ghost sports editor, joined them in this honor, an exceptional procedure brought about by exceptional circumstances, as Phil Matthews, chairman and present editor-in-chief, said. Lovell Carroll, news editor, also got a ring, along with Matthews, Ken Dunn, and Ross Paterson.

Silver pins went to the present associate editors: Ken Cameron, Aronovitch, Barclay, Bourne, Dave Macfarlane, Whit Morton, Ewart Roid and Margaret Stockton. About half the staff was honored by pins, promotions, and honorable mentions.

MACCABEAN CIRCLE

The annual business meeting of the above society will take place on tomorrow afternoon March 23, 1930. The reports of the various officers will be read, and the election of a new executive for the coming year will take place. All those who have not paid their annual dues of One Dollar ($1.00) are asked to do so.
